A False Flight

Before too long, the recession may turn into a stormy depression. Yet, so long as defense can take up some of the slack in our economy, we still can push prices upward, we still can call this prosperity even though the bankroll will only pay the grocery bill. But when the only prop is taken away, the groceryman is unpaid, the prosperity will fade quickly away. Instead of a gradual decent, there will be a sudden nose-dive to the floor.

Down at Corbin Monday, representatives of 11 cities joined in a united effort to obtain the atomic plant in Southeastern Kentucky. Business, civic and industrial leaders from Corbin, Harlan, Middlesboro, Pineville, Barboursville, Williamsburg, Burnside, London, Somerset, and Jonesville, Va., and Jellico, Tenn., attended the meeting. The group also is interested in attracting other industries to the southeastern part of the state.

If the proposed plant were located in the Ohio Valley, the future of Kentucky would be tied even more closely to atomic industry. Plants at Paducah and at Oak Ridge, plus the proposed plant, would put the state in the midst of three atomic-energy centers—a situation which could result in great changes in the state's economy. —(The Lexington Herald)

In a three-minute walk Wednesday three persons made "contributions" to the jar. None apparently realized what it was for but seemed willing to donate. One woman reached into her purse to get some small change. A man who had cashed a check at a nearby cashier's window turned as he walked from the window he held a quarter, at least one nickel and some pennies in his hand. He looked over at the jar, walked to it and tossed all the change into it.

The whole question of unexpected balances and contract authorization in connection with national defense contracts has also been raised in regard to federal aid appropriations for national highways. Those who first saw the "thing" along the Illinois Central tracks near South Jefferson street Saturday must have thought the "varmint", which we have heard talked about in neighboring counties recently, had come to Princeton. Several stories made the rounds, but the "thing" turned out to be a hog-constrictor, which

Massy Biennial Care Will Pay Off In Beauty

(By Cynthia Lowry)

There's a third division of the family too often neglected by the home gardener who is of both perennials and annuals. That is the biennial family, comparatively small number of flowering plants which are sown one year and bloom the second year.

Probably some psychological block which keeps most of us from using handsome colorful biennials as widely as annuals and perennials, and perhaps a sneaking thought that they are not all the trouble, work and thought they require.

GARDENER'S TIME

Usually, they are worth every cent spent on them, as anyone has ever seen a row of hollyhocks blooming against a colonial house or a white picket fence can testify. Or who has admired the delicate little faces of the early-blooming pansies and their cousins, the violas. Or has been charmed by the dainty pink, white and blue flowers of forget-me-nots.

There are other important garden flowers in this group, too: the handsome blooms of Canterbury bells, ranging from white through pink to deep purple; the tall and graceful foxgloves; the old-fashioned sweet williams. And English daisies, Iceland poppies, honesty and rose-campion pretty well complete the list.

FORETHOUGHT NEEDED

The trouble with biennials, if trouble it be, is that seed for next year's crop must be sown during the summer months of this year and most of the young plants require considerable attention if the best flowers are to be achieved.

Ideally, they should be started in special seed-beds or individual pots in a cold-frame which can be shielded from the hot summer sun. The seed-bed should consist of screened earth rather than the lean side. Growing conditions vary so much that the best starting date can be reached only after a little experimentation. For most of them, June and July are the best times. Pansies should be started later—in August.

After the young seedlings have sprouted their second set of leaves—the second pair are called "true leaves"—they should be transplanted into rows with plenty of growing room, or into individual pots, and the soil may be slightly enriched.

SOIL REQUIREMENTS

Until the young plants are comfortably settled down to their first-season growth, the soil and conditions must be watched carefully. Soil should be moist at all times, but never consistently saturated. They must have sufficient sun—and for these young plants that means some shade. They also must be protected from the hot and drying glare of summer. All this can be done with shades over the cold frame.

And when fall comes, the plants may be set out in the locations where they are to bloom the next year. Once established, most of these plants require no such elaborate precautions if the gardener isn't fussy about color and quality of bloom. Most of them produce quantities of seed and self-sow liberally.

FORGET-ME-NOTS PROSPER

From one small gift-plant of forget-me-nots a few seasons back, this gardener now has forget-me-nots tucked in moist spots all over the flower beds. But if special colors are desired, it can only be achieved by planting newly purchased seed each year.

When freezing weather comes, most of the biennials require some winter protection—just the kind required by the perennials—leaf or evergreen-branch mulches.

In cases where the biennial has velvety, soft leaves, it is a good idea to protect them from rotting on the ground by holding up the leaves. Place small sticks or twigs around the base of the plant—or even small berry bushes for the larger plants.

Most human cancer is found in older people, but no age is exempt.

142 Local Farmers Ask Assistance In Soil Conservation

By Oliver C. Alcock (Soil Conservation Service)

The armyworm outbreak in the county has been the worst in several years and there is still danger of further damage if fields are not watched closely.

Using a flashlight at night or inspecting the fields early in the morning is the best time to catch the worms at work. Worms can practically ruin a seed crop in two to four days. Spray with toxophene at the rate of 1 1/2 to 2 pounds of the actual toxophene per acre.

HOG PRICES DOWN

Hog prices normally reach a low point during late April or May as heavy marketings of the fall pig crop occur. With the long-continued decline in hog prices, it is doubtful whether they will decline much further during May. In fact, the sharp advances during late April may indicate that the seasonal low already has been reached. Prices during the next thirty days are expected to fluctuate considerably from day to day in response to heavy or light marketings.

In spite of the strength of hog prices during the last half of April, the average price for hogs at Chicago was the lowest for April in six years except in 1950, and was $4.45 below the average for the corresponding month of 1951.

SPRING LAMB PRICES

Prices of spring lambs normally work slightly lower during May as supplies increase. The decline this year on spring lambs may not be as great as normal because the spread between fed and spring lamb prices was not as large as usual. This spread was held comparatively narrow this year because of the O. P. S. ruling that spring and fed lambs were the "same commodity" and that spring lambs were not subject to special consideration.

The April lamb condition report of the U. S. D. A. indicated that lambs in Kentucky were dropped somewhat later than usual, and although making excellent progress will not be ready for market until two to three weeks later than usual. This indicates comparatively light marketings during the remainder of May and June, with the bulk of the crop moving to market in July.

WOOL PRICES STEADY

Wool prices remained about steady during April and May with graded 3/8 blood staple wool selling in a range of 57 to 60 cents per pound, grease basis, and graded bright 3/8 blood staple fleece wool at 60 cents per pound, grease basis.

Not many sales of this year's clip have been reported in the producing areas. Country buyers were offering 47 to 50 cents grease basis during the last two weeks of April, but producers seemed hesitant to sell at that price.

THE GARDEN

By John S. Gardner, Kentucky College of Agriculture and Home Economics

TOMATO LATE BLIGHT

Tomato late blight may seem like an old story, but nobody knows when it may come again.

Should it not come this year, the other tomato troubles, leaf mold, early blight, leafspot and anthracnose, will. Although they destroy the tomatoes more slowly than the "bad" blight, the destruction is as complete. So it's a good idea to have a late patch coming on, to take up when the fruit on the first set plants become so small and sour as not to be usable. The second patch will not be needed if protection has been given the first with materials that control the early diseases, while insuring against the late blight as well.

Such materials are oxchloride copper and basic copper sulphate copper and certain of the carbamates.

The oxchlorides commonly found are Copper-A, C-O-C-S, Cupro-K and others, carrying about 45 per cent metallic copper (read the label) and used at the rate of 2 level tablespoons per gallon of water. Also, there is Tennessee 26, but 3 tablespoons are needed per gallon. Basic copper sulphate (52 per cent copper) sells under its own name, and 2 tablespoons are required per gallon, with 3 or 4 tablespoons of wheat flour to keep it from settling, or use any of the "soapsless" soap powders, as the manufacturer suggests in the fine print on the label.

The most effective carbamates are Dithane and Parzate, both about 60 per cent, 1 1/2 tablespoons to the gallon of water.

As many tomato diseases start early, spraying should start when the fruits of the first cluster are the size of a pea, and should be repeated every 10 days, making from 8 to 10 sprayings by the last week of September. The entire plant should be covered completely, as only spraying can assure leaving no blank spaces where disease germs may obtain foothold.

Lest a gardener may question what he thinks must be an expensive undertaking, 30 plants sprayed weekly 13 times used just a trifle over a pound of the material.

Washington Letter

(By Jane Eads) Washington — Since 1943 some members of Congress have gathered quietly at weekly prayer meeting breakfasts at the capitol to ponder "ways and means of living amid the world's problems in a manner acceptable of God." Though they shun publicity in what they describe as a purely personal matter, it is known that about 35 senators meet once a week in the Vandenberg room, across the hall from the regular Senate dining room, and more than 60 members of the House in the same room on another morning. The senators' group was formed under the leadership of Sen. Alexander Wiley (R-Wis.).
The House group was organized by Rep. Ralph Gwinn (D-N. Y.).
The idea for prayer meeting clubs started in 1935 in Seattle, Wash., and has snowballed throughout the U. S. as well as abroad.
After a business discussion, Mrs. Guy Shoulders gave the treasurer's report for the year and announced that the club is the winner of the $61.75 prize given by the Farm Bureau to the club which solicits the most members.
A food sale netted $33.75.
The major lesson, "Textile Painting," was given by Mrs. Collin Ladd and Mrs. Ray Martin.
Citizenship lesson was given by Mrs. Collin Ladd.
Group singing was under the direction of Mrs. Claude McConnell and Miss Robbie Sims accompanied. At the conclusion of the meeting, Miss Linda Crawford presented a piano solo.
Refreshments were served to Mesdames Collin Ladd, Lee Mash-burn, Garnett Trotter and Patsy, Willis K. Crawford, Linda and Gary, William Crawford, Raymond Stroube, George Martin, Caution Is Urged On Memorial Day

By Dr. W. L. Cash (County Health Officer)
The big Memorial Day weekend is almost here. For many Kentuckians the "long weekend" will mean a trip, a picnic, fishing, swimming or all of these. For many the holiday will end in hurts or tragedy.

In order to help make sure that your family enjoys a happy, unmarred weekend, simple precautions and planning ahead are necessary. If a trip by automobile is planned, it is important to see that tires, brakes, lights and other parts are in good operating condition. A first-aid kit stowed in the glove compartment is always a good idea and a first-aid manual also can be very handy to have along.

If a picnic is on the agenda, be sure the food will not be without refrigeration for more than four hours. Such foods as custard-filled pies and pastries are taboo for picnics unless they can be refrigerated at all times.

Soaking up the sun is a good old vacation pastime but it can be dangerous! In addition to a painful burn, too much sun can cause sunstroke or heat exhaustion. Sunning should be taken in gradual doses and application of oil or lotion to the skin before exposure will help to prevent sunburn. It's a good idea too, to protect the head from the sun's direct rays.

If boating or swimming is scheduled, be sure to observe common-sense safety rules. Needless to say, boats, like cars, should be checked before they are taken out. Changing places in a boat invites disaster! For swimming safety, never swim alone or swim too soon after eating. Swimming far out in water that is too deep also is asking for trouble.

A first-aid pamphlet is available at your local health department, as are pamphlets on "Foods For Picnics."

Australia, Canada, France, Germany, Great Britain, Greece, Holland, Italy, the Philippines and Switzerland. In the Capital there are now 12 such clubs. In addition to members of Congress they claim high-ranking individuals in the city's business and professional circles. Some of these men have formed luncheon or fireside prayer meeting clubs.

The groups function under International Christian Leadership, Inc., which is interdenominational.
E. M. Cabaniss, New York and New Jersey industrialist, is president of the American branch of the organization. Sen. Penders (R-Vt.) is chairman of the international council. Sen. Kefauver (D-Tenn.) and Rep. Hays (D-Ark.) are vice chairmen.

Donald C. Stone of the Mutual Security Administration, is a member of the Executive committee of the local group. Others active are Senators Robertson (D-Va.), Dworshak (R-Idaho) and Carlson (R-Kans.), Rep.
Armstrong (R-Mo.) and Rep.
Bennett (D-Fla.) as well as Dr.
Ernest S. Griffith, director of the Legislative Reference Service of the Library of Congress.

Princess Wilhelmina of the Netherlands, mother of Queen Juliana, is honorary chairman of the international council. Abraham Verreide, who came to this country in 1905 from Norway, was graduated from North-western University in Evanston, Ill., and was a minister for some years, is international director.

NEW MOUSETRAP IDEA

Marion, Ill. — (AP) — The world is a step nearer that better mousetrap. Henry Hoffman, 79, a retired executive, started with a common trap and had a fishhook soldered onto the bait trigger. He explains the bait may be put on the hook barb so that the mouse that tries to slip it off gets hooked like a fish. It's not an invention," Hoffman chuckles.
"It's just an idea and I want everybody to know about it."

Both the flippers of whales and the wings of bats have internal structures indicating that they once had the five-digit form found in many mammals and illustrated by the hands and feet of man.

Although there were many censuses in the ancient world, the Middle Ages developed a prejudice against them which extended into comparatively modern times.

Today's Best Bargain!

The amount rung up on the cash register is what the Illinois Central charges — on the average — for hauling a ton of freight one mile. That's all — 1 1/2 cents!

That small amount includes the increase recently granted the railroads. On the Illinois Central it adds only a tenth of a cent to the previous rate.

The freight car remains the undisputed best bargain in transportation for commerce and industry.

And remember, the Illinois Central handles all kinds of freight — not just the high revenue items. We believe our job is to provide transportation for everything, every day, everywhere. That's our contribution to the prosperity and vigor of Mid-America's business, industry and agriculture.

Keep this in mind, too: The Illinois Central, unlike motor freight carriers, air lines and barge lines, enjoys no federal subsidies. Yet we pay our full share of taxes — federal, state and local — $36 million last year. And we're proud of doing our full part to support the necessary operation of government.

Our promise to you — and all Mid-America — is this: So long as we run this railroad, the Illinois Central will continue to offer the best of all transportation bargains.
